Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(1 a) Resettlement is a well-established act of solidarity with refugee-hosting countries based on humanitarian needs. Resettlement consists of the selection of third-country nationals and stateless persons in need of international protection in a state in which they have sought protection and their transfer from that state and admission to another state with a view to granting them international protection and providing them with a durable solution. Resettlement has three interrelated and complementary functions: it is a tool for protection, it is a durable solution and it is a responsibility-sharing mechanism.

Amendment 2

Proposal for a regulation Recital 1 b (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(1 b) The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) is mandated by its statute and United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) resolutions to undertake resettlement as one durable solution for persons in protracted refugee situations. The UNHCR's expertise in this field is based on decades of work and a globally supported mandate. The UNHCR's competence in this field should be a source of support for Member States' resettlement programmes, and for the Union Resettlement Framework.

Amendment 3

Proposal for a regulation Recital 1 c (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(1 c) According to Article 78(1) TFEU, the Union's asylum policy is to be in accordance with the Geneva Convention of 28 July 1951 and the Protocol of 31 January 1967 relating to the status of refugees, and other relevant treaties. Those treaties are grounded in Article 14 of the 1948 Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which recognises the right of persons to seek asylum from persecution in other countries.

Amendment 4

Proposal for a regulation Recital 1 d (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(1d) The cohesion and effectiveness of the Common European Asylum System (CEAS) should be guaranteed. This will entail, in particular, enhancing the legal and safe avenues for entry into the Union for third-country nationals or stateless persons who are in need of international protection. Resettlement is a legal pathway which should offer the most vulnerable third-country nationals or stateless persons a durable solution and should be complemented by other legal pathways.

Amendment 5

Proposal for a regulation Recital 1 e (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(1e) Resettlement is a tool for protection. Family reunification should be independent of resettlement targets and should be maintained as a key mechanism to ensure that Union citizens and third country nationals legally residing in the territory of the Member States enjoy their fundamental right to respect for family life. The resettlement procedure should not be used for family members who would otherwise have a right to join their family in a Member State in a timely manner in accordance with other legal acts of the Union or national law. In cases where Union or national law does not apply, it should be possible to use the resettlement procedures for the purposes of extended family reunification. Member States should adopt flexible family reunification policies, and ensure that family reunification programmes are developed outside of their resettlement quotas.

Amendment 6

Proposal for a regulation Recital 1 f (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

1f) If one family member is being considered for resettlement (e.g. on protection grounds), Member States should seek to ensure, in line with the principle of family unity, that all of the person's family members, including dependent non-nuclear family members, are resettled together. Member States should take a path of cultural sensitivity combined with a pragmatic approach as the best course of action in the process of determining the parameters of a given family. The nuclear family may be viewed as the core, but the element of dependency among family members, physical and financial, as well as psychological and emotional, should find its appropriate weight in the final determination. A culturally sensitive understanding of the family is important for those forced to flee due to persecution and civil conflict, as the extended relations may be the last line of defence for individuals who rely exclusively on the family unit for survival, psychological support, and emotional care.

Amendment 7

Proposal for a regulation

Recital 1 g (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(1g) The Union Resettlement Framework should support and encourage Member States in the implementation of permanent resettlement programmes, whether they are old or new, and in the gradual increase of their collective resettlement efforts and should support and facilitate the reception and integration of resettled persons.

Amendment 8

Proposal for a regulation

Recital 1 h (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(1h) The New York Declaration for Refugees and Migrants adopted by the UNGA on 19 September 2016<sup>1a</sup> urges states to scale up resettlement efforts and envisages a comprehensive refugee response framework in which States aim to provide resettlement places and other legal pathways on a scale that would enable the annual resettlement needs identified by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees to be met.

Proposal for a regulation Recital 5

(5) According to the EU-Turkey Statement of 18 March 2016 all new irregular migrants crossing from Turkey into Greek islands as from 20 March 2016 would be returned to Turkey. For every Syrian being returned to Turkey from Greek islands, another Syrian will be resettled from Turkey to the Union taking into account the United Nations Vulnerability Criteria. In May 2016, the Member States and Dublin Associated States and Turkey reached a common understanding on Standard Operating Procedures guiding the implementation of this resettlement scheme.

Proposal for a regulation

Recital 8

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(8) Building on the existing initiatives, a stable and reliable Union Resettlement Framework should be established for the resettlement of persons in need of international protection to be implemented in accordance with annual Union resettlement plans and targeted Union resettlement schemes which effectively deliver on Member States' concrete commitments.

(8) Building on the existing initiatives and in conformity with the existing international resettlement architecture, a stable and reliable Union Resettlement Framework should be established for the resettlement of persons in need of international protection to be implemented in accordance with Union resettlement plans and targeted Union resettlement schemes which effectively deliver on Member States' concrete commitments. The Union Resettlement Framework should be based on humanitarian needs, contribute to meeting the global resettlement needs and alleviate protracted refugee situations. The Union Resettlement Framework should conform to already existing structures for resettlement, in particular the Annual Tripartite Consultations on Resettlement (ATCR), with the aim of reaching at least 20% of UNHCR Annual Projected Global

Resettlement Needs. In accordance with the principles of solidarity and fair sharing of responsibility among the Member States as laid down in Article 80 TFEU, efforts should be made over time to achieve a fair distribution of resettled persons among the Member States. Those efforts should be combined with efforts to establish international binding rules regarding the shared worldwide responsibility to resettle persons in need of resettlement as indicated by the UNHCR.

(In the context of “annual Union resettlement plan” it should be referred to “Union resettlement plan” without the word “annual”, This amendment applies throughout the text. Adopting it will necessitate corresponding changes throughout.)

Amendment 14

Proposal for a regulation Recital 9 a

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(9a) Persons displaced within their own countries should be granted leave to enter the territory of the Union under humanitarian admission programmes. Due account should therefore be taken of humanitarian admission as an adjunct to resettlement. Measures for internally displaced persons (IDPs) taken by Member States under national humanitarian admission programmes should therefore be eligible for funding from the Union budget. National humanitarian admission programmes that receive Union funding should be in addition to resettlement targets under this Regulation. Consideration should be given to the scope for introducing a common Union procedure, which is separate from resettlement, for the admission of persons displaced within their own countries. When allowing for the admission of IDPs, Member States should first and foremost respect their right to return to their places of origin and should, under no circumstance, resettle them as a means of achieving Union or national foreign policy objectives.

Amendment 16

Proposal for a regulation

Recital 10 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(10 a) In the context of the strategic use of resettlement, the Union should endeavour to establish from the outset close dialogue with the third countries from which persons are resettled, in particular those facing lasting crises characterised by the presence on their territory of long-term refugees. A dialogue of this kind should seek to maximise the benefits of resettlement from these countries by placing the emphasis on increasing their asylum capacities, integrating the refugees present on their territory and protecting those refugees against persecution and refoulement to third countries. The strategic use of resettlement should not be interpreted as migration control or used as a means to achieve the Union's foreign policy objectives. The lack of strategic use of resettlement should not be used as a reason to exclude a country or region as a geographical priority. The same principle should be understood for complementarity with financial and technical assistance.

Amendment 17

Proposal for a regulation Recital 11

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment 20

Proposal for a regulation Recital 15 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(15 a) An emergency procedure should be established with the same level of security checks as under the ordinary procedure. However, in the emergency procedure, the submission of emergency resettlement cases from the UNHCR should be subject to an accelerated assessment of the requirements and eligibility criteria established under this Regulation. Emergency resettlement cases should not necessarily be linked to the geographical priorities as established under this Regulation. Emergency places should reflect around 10% of the target number. All Member States should be encouraged to offer emergency places.

Amendment

(17) Any personal data collected for the purpose of the resettlement procedure should be stored in Eurodac for a maximum period of five years from the date of resettlement. This storage period will ensure that the persons concerned enjoy the same rights as those afforded to asylum seekers and beneficiaries of international protection in the respect of the processing of their data. Resettled persons should have the same access to integration measures as other beneficiaries of international protection in accordance with the [Qualification Regulation]. Member States may make the participation in such integration measures compulsory only if those integration measures are easily accessible, available and free of charge. Member States should also offer a pre-departure orientation programme to third-country nationals or stateless persons, which should include information about their rights and obligations, language classes, and information about the Member State's social, cultural and political set up. These programmes may be provided after entry or may be included into integration programmes should Member States choose to have them and taking into account the particular vulnerabilities of the resettled person. Member States should also arrange post-arrival orientation programmes tailored to the needs of resettled persons in order to provide them with guidance concerning, in particular, the learning of the language of the host Member State, education, training and the labour market, taking account of their specific vulnerabilities. ## EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

Every day 34,000 men, women and children are forced to leave their homes due to conflict, persecution, violence and human rights violations. This figure has risen steadily year on year, resulting in more than 65 million people fleeing for their lives, split two to one between internally displaced people and refugees. An estimated 12.4 million people were displaced in 2015 alone. With ever-rising numbers and no pauses in the conflicts and violence responsible, there is an urgent need for more effective, permanent solutions on a global scale.

The Geneva Convention: An international law instrument in the aftermath of 2nd WW

Following the Second World War, many countries realised that there was a deep need to promote and further establish international law instruments. One of the objectives was to create an international instrument that would ensure that people in need of protection would be granted refuge. In the Geneva Convention of 28 July 1951 Relating to the Status of Refugees, the international community has laid down binding rules of international humanitarian law that delineate who, in what circumstances, is to be treated as a refugee and how they are to be cared for. All EU Member States are signatories to that Convention. Although the European Union as such is not a signatory to the Convention, Article 63(1) EC expressly provides that the common policy on asylum must be adopted in accordance with the 1951 Convention and the 1967 Protocol.

United Nations High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) was created in 1950, during the aftermath of the Second World War, to help millions of people who had fled or lost their homes. UNHCR serves as the ‘guardian’ of the 1951 Convention and its 1967 Protocol. The UNHCR is a central worldwide actor providing support to countries hosting refugees and assisting States in their policy responses. In order for the European Union to reinforce its work on refugee protection and resettlement, it is critical to build upon the work of UNHCR.

Resettlement: one safe and legal pathway for international protection

The Common European Asylum System, currently under revision, addresses different elements such as increased responsibility sharing for welcoming refugees, reception conditions, common procedures and rules for qualification. However, there is a gap when it comes to addressing the need for safe and legal arrivals to the EU.

Increased and more effective safe and legal routes into the EU have been called for in numerous European Parliament resolutions over the years, as well as by the European Commission, the Council of Europe’s Commissioner for Human Rights, the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, the UN Special Rapporteur on the human rights of migrants, the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, and many civil society actors. A UN Summit on refugees and migrants, and a refugee summit convened by President Obama in September 2016, also called for safe and legal pathways, including resettlement.

While resettlement shares some similarities with migration pathways, it is a distinct pathway. Resettlement must therefore be recognised as complementary to, and not a replacement of, other legal routes to international protection, including humanitarian visas, extended family reunification, and humanitarian admission programmes.

UNHCR is mandated by its Statute and the UN General Assembly Resolutions to undertake resettlement as one out of three durable solutions. The official definition of “resettlement” in the UNHCR Resettlement Handbook is as follows:

Resettlement involves the selection and transfer of refugees from a State in which they have sought protection to a third State which has agreed to admit them – as refugees – with permanent residence status. The status provided ensures protection against refoulement and provides a resettled refugee and his/her family or dependants with access to rights similar to those enjoyed by nationals. Resettlement also carries with it the opportunity to eventually become a naturalized citizen of the resettlement country.

Resettlement is, by design, a tool to provide protection and a durable solution to refugees. It is with this background that the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, the International Organisation for Migration, the European Council on Refugees and Exiles, the International Rescue Committee, Caritas, the Red Cross, Amnesty International and many more stakeholders, mean that linking resettlement with third countries cooperation in migration matters is not a sustainable choice. It moves away from resettlement as a protection tool for the most vulnerable refugees. Resettlement must continue to be based on the needs of the most vulnerable refugees. It is worth noting that UNHCR already views resettlement as the last alternative, meaning that when they assess a case other durable solutions have already been reviewed. Determining geographical priorities based on third countries cooperation in the area of migration and leveraging resettlement to reach foreign policy objectives would therefore de facto jeopardize a humanitarian, needs-based and international protection approach. Similarly, it is essential that the Union framework align with UNHCR when it comes to eligibility criteria used in resettlement programmes.

A Union Framework that complements international structures for resettlement

In order to ensure that the EU framework reinforces global resettlement efforts, as well as upholds international law, resettlement must be underpinned by protection considerations for the persons concerned. A European Union Resettlement Framework should be based on humanitarian needs, contribute to global resettlement needs and alleviate protracted refugee situations. For this reason, the Framework must be aligned with already existing international resettlement structures in order to be complementary to existing efforts, to be able to further increase EU member states participation in resettlement, and most importantly, to actually function on the ground. This will be ensured in the following ways:

- The role of UNHCR as the main institution that refers resettlement cases to Member States is reiterated (Article 10). This does not mean that Member States or other relevant organisations cannot do referrals; it is only stating how resettlement already works on the ground. However, it puts in place safeguards and it avoids duplication of procedures or structures.
- Geographical priorities (Article 4 and 7) should be based on the Global Projected Resettlement Needs publication that UNHCR releases every year. This is where we can find the most thorough assessment of where the needs for resettlement are most urgent in the world, and it should clearly guide the Union Resettlement Framework.
- The role of the High-Level Resettlement Committee should be more clearly aligned with existing structures. Following the Annual Tripartite Consultations on Resettlement (ATRC) the High-Level Resettlement Committee shall meet to outline the main components of the resettlement plan as well as the different resettlement schemes. The membership of the high-level resettlement committee has been broadened in order to ensure more transparency and quality.

A Union Framework that increases numbers

Europe has 23.8% of the world's GDP (OECD data, 2014), yet EU Member States host only around 8% of the world's refugees. This places a disproportionate burden on developing countries, which host the vast majority. 22 European countries resettled 13,040 persons in 2015 (9,629 to 17 EU Member States), with Europe contributing, on average, approximately 10 per cent to global resettlement intakes over the past five years. By contrast, that same year, the U.S. resettled 69,933 refugees.

EU Member States have displayed an unwillingness to create adequate legal and safe pathways of entry into the region. As a result, people on the move continue to be left with no other option but to turn to smugglers and embark on dangerous irregular journeys. If we want to reduce the need for dangerous journeys, reduce loss of lives and reliance on smuggling networks, this will only become a reality when the number of places offered is credible and meaningful. The Union Resettlement Framework should target to resettle at a minimum 25% of the Annual Projected Global Resettlement Needs. In 2017 this would mean approximately 250,000 people.

A Union Framework that supports national programmes

The EU Member States that have running and successful resettlement programmes should be encouraged to continue and to expand, share their experience and pool resources. The EU Member States that are just starting their first resettlement programmes should be given all support necessary for their first experience to be rewarding and positive. The EU Member States that have little or no experience of resettlement need to find a robust structure that can help them get started, which includes an exchange of best practices with other Member States, and operational and technical support including from [The European Union Asylum Agency]. If the Union Resettlement Framework enforces common procedures, eligibility criteria or exclusion grounds also on national programmes, it runs the risk of discouraging national efforts in the field of resettlement.

At the same time it is clear we need to build incentive for Member States to participate in the Union Resettlement Framework. As a balance between these two objectives, it is suggested that Member States keep the EUR 6,000 per resettled person that they receive from AMIF, and keep the raised number of EUR 10,000 per resettled person when Member States choose to resettle under the Union Framework.

A Union Framework that provides a durable solution

The basis of resettlement as a durable solution is that receiving States are expected to provide resettled persons with permanent residence. A one-year or three years residence cannot be seen as a durable solution by anyone. Therefore, it is vital that Member States are able to issue residence permits that are more favourable than those suggested in [the Qualification Regulation]. On this point, it is suggested that Member States may issue residence permits of permanent or unlimited validity on terms that are more favourable as referred to in Article 13 of Council Directive 2003/109/EC, as amended by Directive 2011/51/EU [the Long Term Residence Directive].

A Common European Asylum System must have several safe and legal pathways

Our common asylum system cannot continue to exclusively focus on making it as hard as possible for people fleeing to reach the territory of the European Union. Safe and legal pathways, together with good reception and integration structures, is absolutely vital for a functioning European asylum system. The right to asylum and international law must be respected. It is not a choice that Member States can opt-out of. A robust Union Resettlement Framework that ensures added quality and quantity to already existing European resettlement efforts is one fundamental part of such a system – but must be coupled with other legal pathways as well. The European Union must step up our common efforts and prove that our continent and our Union can take our fair share of the global responsibility.

OPINION OF THE COMMITTEE ON BUDGETS

for the Committee on Civil Liberties, Justice and Home Affairs on the proposal for a regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council establishing a Union Resettlement Framework and amending Regulation (EU) No 516/2014 of the European Parliament and the Council

(COM(2016)0468 – C8-0325/2016 – 2016/0225(COD))

Rapporteur: Gérard Deprez

SHORT JUSTIFICATION

The rapporteur is of the opinion that the EU is in urgent need of an integrated, sustainable migration policy, based on solidarity and fair burden-sharing between all Member States. He believes that the creation of legal ways to seek refuge in Europe could avoid tragic deaths in the Mediterranean Sea and break down the business model of migrant smugglers.

The rapporteur supports linking the proposed recast of the ‘Dublin regulation’<sup>1</sup> to the present proposal, so that the number of resettled persons is added to the number of applications for international protection for the purpose of calculating the corrective allocation mechanism. The rapporteur is also in favour of establishing a link with the recast Eurodac regulation<sup>2</sup> so that data on resettled persons will be stored in the Eurodac system.

In terms of its budgetary implications, despite the absence of a well-defined quota of persons to be resettled in the proposal, the rapporteur wishes that these resettlement plans should be ambitious and that the means necessary for their implementation be made available.

The rapporteur welcomes the proposal to allocate EUR 10,000 from the Union budget to Member States for each resettled person, to be paid from AMIF, on the basis of Union resettlement plans adopted on an annual basis by the Council. The rapporteur understands the removal of co-financing from the EU budget for resettlement under national resettlement programs with a view to ensure the necessary funding of these European resettlement programs.

Finally, the rapporteur wishes to emphasize that both arms of the Budgetary Authority must have full information on the financial implications of the next annual resettlement plan at the time of the presentation of the proposal on the draft Union annual budget for the following year.
